■ ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLES MANAGEMENT (INVOICE TO COLLECTION PROCESS)

Accounts Receivables Management (ARM) is a financial process that helps companies to manage, track, process and collect all accounts receivables. The objective is to convert receivables into cash as quickly and effectively as possible.

The ARM processes of a company usually include:

- 1 Customer risk assessment and credit extension processes
- 2 Sales documentation - accurate, complete & timely invoicing
- 3 Focused follow up with the customers or branch or sales (account) managers to realize sales proceeds within the due dates
- 4 Correct application of receipts, ledger a/c & TDS reconciliations

To meet the ARM challenge effectively companies need to invest time, talent, infrastructure and technology. However, it isn't easy to spare these resources; which is probably why "inefficiencies in own process" account for 70% of AR delays in a typical company.

Hiring an ARM specialist makes maximum cash inflow for business and reduce cost of capital.

Our concentrated focus, innovative approach and comprehensive delivery model provides several advantages to business over internal departments.
